Instructor: UNIV 101 (open to qualified graduate students - see below)

Overview
The Office of General Education (OGE) is currently seeking instructors to teach two sections of the 1-unit UNIV 101: Introduction to the General Education Experience courses. This course, required for all new first-year students, will utilize a common syllabus and reading to provide students with a foundation for the GE curriculum at UA. The OGE is seeking graduate students with a passion for general education and teaching first-year students. These courses are offered in person for the full fall 2022 semester.

Duties and Responsibilities
● Attend UNIV 101 instructor orientation and training (to be held the week before classes begin with multiple options)
● Teach 2 sections of UNIV 101 for the fall semester using the common syllabus and reading
● Hold/be available for weekly office hours for students in the course
● Attend weekly instructional team meetings
● Provide regular feedback and support to students.

Compensation and Eligibility
Graduate student instructors will receive compensation of $22.06/hour for eight hours per week for 17 weeks for a total compensation of $3,000 for two sections. Course assignments are dependent upon enrollment. Candidates who are assigned only one section due to enrollment changes will be compensated for four hours per week.

Selected graduate students who currently have no assistantship will be hired as student workers; selected graduate students who currently hold a 0.25 FTE assistantship will be offered supplemental compensation. Because of the limitations on supplemental compensation, graduate students who are in a 0.5 FTE assistantship are not eligible for this opportunity. Please note that this is not a graduate assistant position and does not carry benefits or tuition remission.

Minimum Qualifications
● Currently enrolled at least half-time in a graduate program of study at the University of Arizona;
● Completion of a minimum of 9 units of graduate study;
● Experience teaching undergraduate students in for-credit courses (assignment as instructor of record is not required) or non-credit experiences.

Knowledge, Skills, and Abilities
● Knowledge and demonstrated use of learner-centered teaching, universal design for learning, and inclusive teaching practices
● Knowledge of and the ability to communicate the purpose and value of general education
● Ability to establish rapport with students
● Ability to use a variety of instructional technologies
● Ability to work collaboratively with an instructional team
● Knowledge of and ability to utilize effective means of team development and management, provision of feedback, and communication

To apply, please complete the application here. Questions can be directed to Tom Murray (tam@arizona.edu) or Devon Thomas (devonthomas@arizona.edu).